Comment: I would like to make sure you are including the cost of flooding prime agricultural land and more importantly traditional Aboriginal lands in your calculation of the costs. I would also like to know if you are calculating the costs that the fossil fuel industries this electricity is being collected to power, will incur, in the form of recovery due to flooding, earthquakes from hydraulic fracturing, changes in our weather including devastating storms, influx of refugees from countries that are completely devastated by climate change, etc. These are all less obvious costs associated with building Site C and need to be taken into account.
